Rating:  / 1
2011-10-25

Everyone wants visitors to convert. Depending on the organization, that could mean bookmarking the site, subscribing to the newsletter, purchasing the product or service, registering for an account, donating to the charity, or what have you. But visitors won't make the effort unless you make an effort.

Google Hides Referrers: Privacy or Money?

in Google Optimization
Rating:  / 3
2011-10-24

Just last week, Google changed access to information about searchers leaving their website after a search. Searchers who are logged into their Google accounts no longer automatically pass along the term with which they searched - with one important exception. But this exception is enough to make some observers question Google's motives.

Ballmer Blunt at Web 2.0 Summit in MSN Optimization

Rating:  / 3
2011-10-20

Microsoft CEO Steve Ballmer never has any trouble telling people what he really thinks. Attendees of the Web 2.0 Summit in San Francisco on Tuesday discovered this all over again when John Battelle interviewed Ballmer there.

Yahoo Profit Beats Estimates in Yahoo Optimization

Rating:  / 2
2011-10-19

Despite its various market woes, venerable search engine Yahoo can still pull small surprises out of its hat. Its latest financial report showed some bright spots in an otherwise dismal picture for the embattled company's future.

Schema.org and Microdata Markups for SEO in Search Optimization

Rating:  / 1
2011-10-18

The top three search engine companies -- Google, Yahoo and Microsoft's Bing -- came up with an initiative to release schema.org. Schema.org is basically an HTML markup standard to be used by search engines to help them better understand your website's content. This article will show you how to make the best use of this standard.

Google Selling Music Soon? in Google Optimization

Rating:  / 3
2011-10-17

If you figured that Google could do better when they unveiled their Music Beta service in May, well, it looks like Google agreed with you. Rumors started circulating on Friday that the search engine plans a much more complete music streaming and downloading service, to compete with both Amazon's service and Apple iTunes.

When to Use Reciprocal Links in Link Trading

Rating:  / 3
2011-10-14

The debate rages on over reciprocal links, as it has for years. Many SEOs say that they're worthless; that at best, Google ignores them, and at worst, treats them as indicators for spammy websites. Guess what? It isn't that simple.

Google Doesn't Understand Platforms, Says Yegge in Google Optimization

Rating:  / 2
2011-10-13

About three years ago, a senior executive at Yahoo issued what's become known as the "Peanut Butter Manifesto." This internal memo, which leaked to the press, accused the company of spreading itself too thin, like peanut butter, and said that it needed to focus before it was too late. Google engineer Steve Yegge just penned the Google version of this manifesto, and it's causing quite a stir.

Whither Yahoo? in Yahoo Optimization

Rating:  / 2
2011-10-12

Ever since Yahoo chairman of the board Roy Bostock fired Yahoo CEO Carol Bartz (by phone, no less), everyone in the industry seems to be wondering what the venerable search engine will do next. Here's a run-down of possibilities.

Search Optimization and 404 Errors in Search Optimization

Rating:  / 2
2011-10-11

Webmasters often overlook the search engine optimization potential of fixing 404 errors in a website. In fact, paying more attention to 404 errors can help your site attain better rankings in search engines as well as contribute to a better user experience.

WordPress SEO Without a Plug-in in Website

Promotion
Rating: ★★★★★ / 2
2011-10-05

It is possible to implement onsite SEO in WbrdPress without ever using a plug-in. This not only simplifies your SEO onsite implementation, but it's much safer for your blog. A lot of plug-ins in WbrdPress have security exploits associated with them. Even though the WbrdPress core files are constantly being improved by the Wordpress team, the plug-ins are individually maintained by developers outside of WbrdPress.
